MAKING HISTORY

This program featured prominent African Americans in and around the Chicago area who are making history in their own way. In this program we highlight some African American power-players who are making a difference in our society personally, professionally, or through their organization. Setting the backdrop for the program is the Harold Washington Library, which honors the man who made history as the first African American Mayor for the city of Chicago. We featured Congressman Jesse Jackson Jr. and discussed his politics and commitment to family and community of his constituents. Oprah Winfrey talked about her charitable organizations, "The Angel Network", "The Oprah Book Club", and the positive influence she tries to share on her nationally syndicated television show everyday. Paul Adams of Providence St. Mel School (K-12) tells of the success of their school and the 100% acceptance of their students to major universities across the country.
